in Edinburgh. Khaliq Raja, aged 23, and Ahmed Raja, aged 28, of Boilton Drive, Glasgow, who run a shop in Salt Market, Glasgow, are accused of culpable and reckless conduct.

. It is alleged that, over two years, they supplied at least 18 children aged between 8 and 15 with solvents, particularly glue, and containers such as crisp packets or plastic begs for inhalation.

It is further alleged that they knew the children intended to inhale the solvents and that they therefore caused or proeured inhalation by the chil-dren. They are also charged with receiving stolen goods from nine of the children in exchange for solvents.

They are due to stand trial in the High Court in Glasgow on September 19, but today's preliminary bearing was to decide whether the trial will go ahead.

Lord McCluskey, QC, fnr Khaliq Raja, said the main charge disclosed no crime known to the law of Scotland. A solvent was not an illegal or controlled substance, he said.

The Financial Times dispute Man who 'steadies management's hand

As the two-month strike at the Financial Times burches deeper into mutual intransigence, trade unionists think they have identified an eminence grise on the side of management. Mr John McKay, former right-hand man to Sir Michael Edwardes at BL, is thought to be a promisent influence on company tactics, although someone who has nevertheless adopted a "low profile" in face-to-face confrontations.

Mr Alan Hare, chairman and chief executive of the newspaper, has insisted without equivocation that an independent mediator's report, underwritten by Mr Len Murray, general secretary of the TUC, should be accepted by the National Graphical Association, (NGA) the union at the centre of the dispute. Mr Hare's hardline approach was reinforced by the NGA's promise to "respect" the report, by Mr Murray's endorsement, and, it is thought, by the influence of

Moscow tightens grip on police to stop corruption

From Richard Owen, Moscow

The Soviet authorities are taking steps to tighten political control over the police after a series of official criticisms of police corruption.

At its last weekly session, the Politburo passed a resolution on the establishment of political organs in the system of the Ministry of the Interior.

Informed sources said it was becoming clear that key depart-ments of the Interior Ministry which control the police and the juduciary were being subjected to closer Communist Party supervision.

The Politburo resolution said the Pointoiro resolution said the political organs set up in the ministry would "organize and guide party political, ideologi-cal-educational and cultural work", and "enhance the responsibility of personnel for the discharge of their duties". The Societ press has often

The Soviet press has often attacked inefficiency or corruption in the police force since the Fedorchuk as Interior Minister, last December.

Pravda recently accused the police of ignoring petty crime for the sake of a quiet life, and exposed bribe-taking by the State Automobile Ispectorate, or traffic police, known by its Russian initials as the GAL Earlier this year General Fedorchuk revealed that senior police officers in Odessa and Georgia had been dismissed and disciplined for embezzleal-Lar ment and negligence.

Sources said the new measures were not aimed at General Fedorchuk, but had been introduced with his full approval. General Fedorchuk succeeded Mr Yuri Andropov as head of the KGB (secret police) in May, last year, before becoming Interior Minister eight months later, and is regarded as close to the Soviet leader.

He has been given the brief of enforcing discipline and high standards. The previous In-terior Minister, Mr Nikolai Shchelokov, was expelled from the party Central Committee in June and may be put on trial.

The development plan calls for prohibition of any new buildings over two stories within the Forbidden City, in the heart of Peking. China has also decided to place Peking's special state protection.

Air pollution has become acute in Peking, particularly during the winter months when smoke from coal used for domestic heating combines with fumes from industrial factories to blanket the city in a pale yellow smog. The authorities have decided

Our little convoy had got as far as Aley when things began to go wrong. There were 17 cars in all, the Christian passengers sitting anxiously inside their vehicles, as the Israeli Army half-tracks and jeeps led us up the hills into the territory of the Druze militia. The trouble was that most of the young men on the convoy, while they were dressed in civilian clothes, were not civilians at all but Phalangist militiamen with guns tacked into the back of their jeans; and the Israelis, for reasons best known to themselves, had turned a blind eye to this mewhat obvious spectacle.

It was the Druze gunme who stopped us, and it was Mr Akram Shehgayel, the local Druze commander in Aley, who explained the reasons to Colonel Emile of the Israeli Army, "We made an agreemen through you that supplies could be taken to the Christian villages," he said. "But these are not civilians. The Ktaib (Phalange) are replenishing their men." He pointed down the road. These are reinforce-

As more owners are forced to open their doors to the public, out troop the public in their ever increasing millions to pay the necessary pound or two and make the tour. The reason is not always clear. To judge from their comments, a lot of visitors do not particularly like architecture (and why should they?), while family portraits and family history leave them cold. Nevertheless, cavesdropping makes it possible to identify one or two strands of unflagging interest.

As everyonc knows, the casually arranged snapshots of the owners, their children and dogs, and of their possibly Royal friends and relations can be relied upon to excite a lively curiosity, as well, depending upon the individ-ual, as awe, envy, class hatred or mirth.

The amount of work it takes to polish floors and dust cornices also generates comment. So does the thought that it was once done without vacuum cleaners. Perhaps the sentiment most regularly voiced, and the one that gives country-house visiting much of its popular romance, is simply; it could not be done today. The craftsmen do not exist, there is no money – and where are the magnificos to build?

Ten years ago, one might bave agreed. There did not seem to be a future for the country bouse as a continuing tradition. In the past, building country bouses required ambition as well as money – the ambition to establish your family and descendants in a position of ease, authority and invincible social prestige. And a precondition was confi-dence that the general state of things would continue long enough to make the effort worthwbile. The eighteenthcentury banker or nabob who commissioned Robert Adam sank large sums of money in activities that his children and grandchildren might enjoy more than himself. Such confidence became very difficult after the Second World War. It scarcely existed in the 1970s.

In Mrs Thatcher's Britain, the position is different. A sufficient number of people have done well and desire to set themselves up in the country to support a number - a small number - of architectural practices specializing in the country house. This shows a double commitment to architecture, because the chances are that it would be much cheaper to buy an existing eighteenth-century house than huild a new one, even one smaller in scale. In addition, the eightcenthcentury has a cultural prestige with which the new might find it hard to

Admittedly the new country houses do not, hy contrast with the claims of today's dottier right-wing architectural critics, compare in size or kind with Hatfield House or Burghley. They are not on the same scale or constructed with the same intentions as the great Edwardian mansions designed by Lutyens and his contemporaries. On the whole, they are not huilt with

Here are the values of born-again

Toryism in brick and stone. The leading country house architect is Quinlan Terry, a tall, severe man in three-piece tweeds, whose office is in Dedham, on the Stour in Essex. That Dedham today is one of the most perfect English villages is largely due to his vigilance and that of his predecessor and master. Raymond Erith, who died in 1973. Erith was prepared to rush out from his office in a small Georgian house on the High Street and berate the man from the council who had come to paint yellow lines on the road or to erect signs. Often the man from the council went away. Building the public lavatory could not be stopped (public lavatories, Terry believes, are an evil, because they encourage charabancs), but it is sited so far from the road that only a wellrehearsed tour operator would know it was there. Terry still works from Erith's old office. I talked to him in a front parlour papered with pages from The Times, now tobacco-coloured with

In 1970, he and Erith finished work at Kingswalden Bury, in Hertfordshire, large, neo-Palladian house that replaced an unsightly Victorian monster. They thought it was the last job of its kind. But now, at 45, he is busier than ever with half a dozen country recognizably country bouses in the Bury – the span of the rooms tends to traditional sense, and there are enough be 18ft or less rather than 21ft. On the of them to be taken seriously as a other hand, there are more of them social and architectural manifestation. than could have been predicted before the general election of 1979.

'If you've got some money, what nicer thing can you do with it than to build a house?" he says, in a mild, scholarly voice that belies the selfadvertisement. "You could spend it on a yacht or a racehorse, which is very temporary. But if you huild a house, it's a monument to this age, to what you think of. And it goes on for your son and grandson." Architecture is still a passport to immortality, or at least to the likelihood of something of you surviving 100 years after your death. That is a significant part of its appeal.

crry quotes a client for whom he recently huilt a house in Yorkshire: "When you see a huilding across a field, in a split second it tells you a lot about the chap who commissioned it. That he has done well, has been civilized, is fond of the land, likes hunting, is either moderate or extrava-

The men and women for whom Terry huilds are various. On the whole, be prefers new money to old. Architects respond to the vigour, self-assurance and will to spend of the self-made entrepreneur, while the man with inherited wealth may be more cautious in hanging on to what he has got. Or, as it is not an invariable rule: Kingswalden Bury was built for a 14th baronet.

The art of architecture, Terry believes, is not only to give his client what he wants but also to express the client's personality. This is done through the Classical language of architecture and the five orders, Tuscan, Doric, lonic, Corinthian, and Composite. "Everybody is one of the five orders," Terry comments. Looking at the photographs that have been published of Terry's summer house at Thenford Hall, Northamptonshire, it is clear that the client, Michael Heseltine, is a flamboyant Corinthian. "Both he and his wife thought so," Terry says. "But some people can't bear things like finials. This one is for a real oldfashioned aristocrat," be says, pointing to a more sober design. He likes a plain house, with a good roof, hig overhanging eaves, no gutters, no valleys -something that will last 200 years." This client will probably merit the Doric or even Tuscan label.

One difficulty for the present-day Classical architect is that the ground-rules of Classicism cannot be taken as known. Some clients are connoisseurs in the old style; one in Warwickshire is currently flooding Terry with sugges-tions and urging him to make his house, ironically a remodelling of an cighteenth-century house, the boldest and most original of his career. Another client, on the other hand, came to Terry after having seen an Terry puts it: "I am interested in article on an earlier Terry bouse in Country Life and asked for one like it.

A third had already realized his dream bouse, a rotunda, on canvas with the help of the artist Felix Kelly.

Surprisingly, the rotunda theme is perfectly adaptable to modern needs.

You get a raised basement floor, which is practical - kitchen, utilities. which is practical – kitchen, utilities, dining-room safe, gun room and everything else. You can protect that very well. Above that you have a ground floor which is just for parade, then a top floor which is quite economical for bedrooms. For modern living it is not totally ridiculous."

Yet Terry's recent bouses do reflect some changes in ways of life "Late"

some changes in ways of life. "Late twentieth-century requirements are different from mid-twentieth century requirements. More and more people are finding that they bave got a big house which they can't comfortably live in. It's either too cold in the winter or it's too big. They tend to cut down on their social life. On the other band, they do like to have 14 people round the dining-room table. But they don't like them staying the night quite so much. "It means that in the last few years I've got terribly husy giving people who can afford it a little, grand house. Now, a little, grand house, when compared to a Victorian house, is a Georgian house.'

An example of a little, grand house is Newfield near Ripon. It is approached by a double lime avenue, and flanked by big timber barns. There are wings projecting forward to either side. "Seen across the fields you think, wow, what a big bouse'. When you get into the courtward it is in fact a small into the courtyard it is in fact a small house, a very small house, with some scale about it."

ut it was not the style's suitability to modern needs that made Terry a Classicist. He rejects nearly every idea commonly accepted by the architectural establishment. He repudiates the present system of training utterly. Much better, he believes, is the pupil and master relationship of the eighteenth century, which was virtually how he learnt under Erith. after five fourtless was not the Architecture. fruitless years at the Architectural Association and a few agonizing months with the modernists Stirling and Gowan. Originality, be claims, is woefully overrated.

Terry keeps album after album of detailed drawings of buildings made on annual family bolidays to Italy, and be quarries them for ideas. So fully is his imagination impregnated with the great buildings of the past that be says, "I think I am derivative in everything I

To Terry, Classicism is more than a style among others. He is a Christian, and holds the belief that the Classical lodges or the other appurtenances of an houses in hand. These bouses are working for the first earl. The second orders, of which the earliest descripestate in former times. Still, they are slightly smaller than Kingswalden earl might be quite good as well." But tion comes in Exodus, were divinely revealed to Moses on Mount with the Ten Commandments. Their use derives not, as most theorists have claimed, from the primitive hut, but from the Temple of Solomon and the Tabernacle in the Wilderness.

To some extent, Terry's reputation for country houses has become a bugbear. Critics understandably write him off by suggesting that Classicism is all very well for a mansion, but not much else. A rich private client can afford to indulge his personal whims by all but ignoring the cost; the rest of us must fret over restricted budgets. Terry disagrees. Some years ago, he and Erith proved that very modest houses could be designed on Classical principles by huilding a row of romantic Classical cottages at Frogmeadow, at the end of Dedham village. Now Terry is designing a Classical office scheme off Broadwick Street, Soho, which has just reached the first floor. He sees this scheme, Dufours Place, as a chance to strike a blow for Classicism where the architectural struggle is fiercest.

It is not quite Terry's first office building: he erected one with Erith at Gray's Inn in the 1960s. But at six. storeys plus attic, Dufours Place is three floors tailer. "It's about as high as you can go without losing the commonsense values of Classicism. You can just manage if the lifts pack up. It is how people built all around Europe in the eighteenth century. And you can build in load-bearing brickwork - you don't need a concrete

A concrete frame means expansion joints, and they are "the beginning of the end". Inevitably pebbles get in or the pliable mastic with which the joints are filled comes out, so that the concrete cracks. Terry points out that no one knows bow the technology of, for instance, Richard Rogers's new Lloyds Building will bear up after 200 years. Yet the quantity surveyor for Dufours Place regarded load-bearing brick as the revolutionary form of construction.

Will this herald a renaissance of brick Classicism as the vernacular in London. Load-bearing brick would be unsuitable for huildings much tailer than Dufours Place because the thickness of the ground-floor walls would reduce the lettable office space. Yet Terry is already acquiring cult status on the other side of the Atlantic. It is adulation he is in two minds about. The use of the orders by Post-Modernist architects calls forth the epithet "Mickey Mouse Classicism".

The exquisite linocut of Dufours Place which is Terry's entry at the Royal Academy exhibition this year shows it to be fronted with a Baroque doorcase, upon which is perched Terry's son, bolding Palladio's Quattro Libri di Architettura. Cruikshank would have liked it, Walt Disney possibly not.

Alas, he has struck up a sinister rapport with my son, and seems genuinely concerned about the Indians. I have always had him down as one of nature's hanging judges, more inclined to demand that Brazil, on pain of international excommunication, discharge her hideous debt than to champion the rights of her profitless aboriginals. My son looks as though he is about to brief him and I am ordered from

Beware the small print

Margaret Snijder was only 41 when she died of cancer in June, 1981. A divorcee, she had been left to bring up four children on her own. When she died, the two youngest, a boy and a girl, 13 and 11, were left in the care of Edward Gopsill, the bursar at the school where she worked as a

Three months before her death she appointed him executor of her estate. After her death he wrote to the peosion scheme to which she contributed from her modest salary, asking for the money due her children which he planned to invest on their behalf. He was told it amounted to just over £400. He was shocked that it was so little - and no wonder. If Margaret Snijder had been a man her children would have received £13,000.

When Margaret had joined the school she told Edward Gopsill she wanted to take part in a Federation Group Pension Schemes [FGPA] plan for employees in nursing, social and charitable work. Members pay in 5 per cent of their earnings, the employer pays in 10 per cent, and a pension is provided on retirement. But the scheme rules for death-inservice benefits - the lump sum a family recieves if the breadwinner dies before retirement - are vastly more generous to dependants of men than of women, A man's family receives cash equivalent to two and a half times his annual salary. Margaret's children were entitled merely to a return of contributions plus 3 per cent interest.

Mr Gopsill was shattered, "I simply could not believe it when I was informed that £434 was all the children were entitled to from the pension scheme, I felt, and still feel, that it was my fault. I did not look at the rules carefully enough. It did not occur to me that pension schemes could discriminate against women in this way any more. I thought this bad been outlawed by legislation. There is no question that the rules were sent to us at the time. But Margaret never realized, I never realized and I'm certain many other women don't realize that they and their families can be discriminated against in this fashion.

After taking legal advice Mr Gopsill went to the Equal Opportunities Commission, which backed a case against FGPS. But there were difficulties. The case was out of time and there was much legal beartsearching about the section of the Sex Discrimination Act under which a case could be brought. A few weeks ago the case of Margaret Snijder's executor against FGPS was dis-missed at Epsom County Court. The judge said there was no case to Matters relating to death or retirement are specifically excluded from the Equal Pay and Sex Discrimination Acts. Neither FGPS nor the thousands of other pension schemes in Britain that provide inferior benefits for women em-ployees are doing anything illegal.

Arthur Wilcock, general manager of Federated Group Pension Schemes, defends the rules that left Mrs Snijder's children with so little. It is a fact that it costs more to provide a pension for a woman than a man," he said. "Women live longer than men and therefore will receive their pension for more years after retirement. To balance this we give the men higher death benefits. It is unfair to look at that part of the scheme in isolation from the rest."

Having successfully defended its position in court his organization offered the Shijder children an ex gratia amount of £7,500 from charitable funds.

The two youngest, Jan and Nicola, now aged 15 and 13, have been adopted by Margaret Snijder's brother and have recently gone to start a new life with him in Australia. For them the future looks relatively optimistic, but what worries the Equal Opportunities Commission is how many other women and their families find themselves short-changed by this loophole in the law, Barbara Ford, of the ECC, says: "We have repeatedly asked the Government to amend the law. One major obstacle is the difference in retirement ages for men

Because many women retire five years earlier than men as well as living on average, seven years longer, pension funds justify discrimination on the grounds of cost. The ECC urges all women paying into private pension schemes to check the small print to see if the Women who believe their pension schemes may discriminate against them should contact the Equol Opportunities Commission, I Bedford Street, London, WC2E 9HD.

Widespread inequality

• How widespread is the discrimination that Margaret Snijder's death brought to light? The scheme she was in is not typical of the more common employer's scheme. There are tens of thousands of pension schemes in the country and each has its owo rules about benefits. Discrimination against women through payment of lump sum death benefits is probably unusual -though women should still check. Bot most schemes are discriminating against women and their families in other ways.

The most widespread inequality is that though payment of a widow's pension to the wife of a male employee who dies either before or after retirement is automatic in virtually all private and public-sector schemes, two-thirds of them do not extend the same right to survivors of a female employee.

Some schemes will pay the benefit tu a husband who has been dependent on his hreadwinning wife because, for instance, be is disabled or unemployed. But just under half the pension schemes that took part in a 1982 survey by the National Association of Pension Funds paid no pension even to these dependent husbands. One obstacle to reform is the fact that the state pension scheme and public-sector schemes such as those for teachers and doctors discriminate against women employees. Another is the deep-sealed notion that men are the main Arguments about the cost of women's pensions are irrelevant, according to Robin Ellison, a solicitor and pensions expert, who advises companies, trustees and trade unions on pensions. He said: The trouble with the present way of looking at pensions is that the actuaries who do the sums are trained to regard men and women as members of two distinct groups, instead of looking at their needs as

"The whole point about pensions or any kind of insurance is that people need protection. And these days it is goite clear that men and women need equal protection."

Madam was right, but how to prove it?

Veronica Groocock reported recently on the misery of wrongly being accused of shoplifting. Today a reader tells of ber similar experi-

It was a dog and bone situation, only I was the bone and the action was in the familiar and reassuring setting of the lashion department of one of London's major stores. I had been looking at T-shirts, and the helpful assistant brought a selection to the changing cubicle. They were scattered around, some draped over my fabric-lined raincoat thrown on a chair.

After lots of trying on and chats with the assistant nothing suited and I needed to be on my way. So put the coats over my arm, bundled up the shirts and returned them with thanks to the assistant and headed for the door.

I had gone only a few yards when there was a faint buzzing sound which neant nothing to me so I carried on. Then - like a dog to a bone - my arm was grabbed by a madam been shopping in the store? Yes, madam had and would she please release madam's arm. Did madam buy anything? No madam had not because she did not find anything she wanted. Then madam would not mind an examination of the raincoat over madam's arm? The coat was handed over, turned inside out and there attached to the labric lining one T-shirt. And attached to the shirt, as the assistant indicated: one anti-theft device, the source of the buzzing a few seconds My words came in a rush with

She had released my arm and now clutched the "evidence", I continued to protest - was it logical as a shoplifter to make off with one cheap tee-shirt [£12, I recall] that I would never wear anyway.

The affair got a good deal worse preferred to remain ignorant.

I was put into a cell-like room and were joined by an apparently senior Les Dawson who asked the shop assistant to give her account of 'how madam was apprehended".

Apologies all round? Pop back upstairs, madam, and have a teeshirt on the house? We'll drive you to your train or at least have a cup of tea? Not a bit of it. Senior Dawson thinks a while, drums his fingers on the desk, gives me a cool, hard look, says finally with the wisdom of many years' store sleuthing: "Well madam, after considering all the facis in your case I am prepared to give you the benefit of the doubt on this occasion . . . However before we That evening I told my husband what had happened. He fired off a letter next morning and demanded an explanation, with an apology taken for granted.

Five days later the 'phone rang at home. It was the managing director, What can I say, madam", he began. "What can I do to make this up to you." I never heard any more about the letter, but there was a great deal more about the problems of shoplifting the fact with which store detectives are taught to act, and a regrettable breakdown in the system.

The managing director did eventually reply to my husband's letter. He was unimpressed to read that the Dawson Squad had apparently been subjected to some-thing slightly less painful than being beaten over the head with one of the store's numerous By Appointment eoats of arms and told to mend their ways. But the nasty taste remains. That and the nagging l'respelle, galettes, crèpes, pan nequets, flensjes, blintzes and and nalésniki are a modest pancake repertoire. Some like tragile Breton galettes a foot or more across. or Chinese spring roll wrappers, require greater definess than occasional pancake makers can muster. But must demand no extraordinary devicting or fancy ingredients. With savoury stuffings and simple sauces there are pancake dishes for all kinds of summer meals from one frying pan cook-ups un the river bank to something more elaborate on the patio. And it is not just the tillings that can be varied. Batters based on buckwheat and wholewheat flours make excelleni pancakes, too. The thin paneakes that

World of the pancake

Italians call crespelle are stuffed and rolled, than baked in sauce like canciloni, or layered and baked lasagne-fashion with stuce and stuffing. For dishes perfect results. If the crespelle like these the paneakes can be are too thick, thin the batter inade a day or two in advance our at any time if they are to be frozent, so it is alway worth making mure than are needed immediately.

In Brittany pancake fillings are instant, one-off affairs. For a ham and egg galette, place a lightly cooked pancake back in the pan. Drop two tablespoons of lightly beaten egg on to it and spread almost to the edges of the pancake. (Use a whole egg if the pancakes are full Breton size.) Top with seasoning and thinly sliced ham cut in small pieces. Cook until the egg is lightly done and fold the pancake in four. Top with a pat of butter and serve immediately. Grated obeese added at the same time as the ham makes this an even more substantial pancake.

TALKBACK

From Joanne Bower, vice-president, Quaker Cancern For Avinual Wellore, 4 Willfield Way, London NW71.

Margaret Legum's article on animal experiments [July 27] is most important. This is primarilv a moral issue and in this alues might well be salutary, as there was then a powerful opposition to such practices. These have greatly increased in number and cruelty since that ime, especially in the psychological field, as Margaret Legum points out, and a welcome resurgence of the public conscience in these matters is now evident.

Should we pause in our headlong scientific advance and ask ourselves what is the purpose of the human race? If it is a progression to a spiritual plane, which all religions indicate, then any deliberate retrogression. There is a general idea that certain experiments which may be beneficial to humans or animals are acceptable, but where does one draw the line? Should we not rather be looking deep into our human institutions, many of which produce the very problems especially the psychological ones - which we try to transfer to aitimals.

Your recent correspondence on sleep prompts me to ask if any other readers of The Times suffer from what I can only call continuous dreaming: dreams every night and all night long. I say "suffer", since my own dreams are almost in-variably unpleasant. This has been my condition for more than 15 years. Is there any way

Beirut echoes for the Tamils in torment

Colombo It is only the yard of a Hindu temple, outside Colombo, but in this small space 5,000 people are trying to stay alive. Two things unite them: their racial origin - for they are Tamils - and their fear.

During the nights and days of Sinhalese violence last week the people now in the camp watched their homes and husinesses burn. their property ransacked, their belongings scattered.

One middle-aged man said be bad been sheltered hy neighbours.
"When the rioters came to my house I just had to sit there and watch everything go", he said. A womao in her late thirties told me: "We saw them come to the front of our house. They were waving sticks and swords. We just ran out and over the back

Some of the refugees wear bandages and plasters. "We were beaten", they say simply. One man with a pad of gauze and plaster on his scalp was brought to me. A Red Cross worker explained: "He went to the hospital and they did this to him there. It was not the doctor. The doctors were very good - hut the other staff...

People mill aimlessly about the temple yard, as closely packed as people in Perticoat Lane on a Sunday morning. They have little to do except worry. "Where do you sleep?" I asked one person. "Right here", he said, pointing at the sandy ground, "We are just happy that it, has not rained since we arrived."

Some nearby school buildings are also being used to house hundreds of people, who sit on the floor - men, women and tiny children together as though waiting for a public meeting to begin. Two taps and two toilets serve the whole camp. A row of additional toilers with bright red doors are locked, reserved for the temple priests, whose cleanliness must never be defiled.

Initially, of course, food was also in short supply. The sudden arrival of the refugees and the confused circumstances made organization difficult, but bags of flour and dal were being delivered as I walked about. The refugees were sure of at least one meal a day.

The food problems seem likely to continue. But the main worry for most of the inhabitants is security. The temple walls are not high, and access is through a low, wrought-iron gate. Outside, a policeman sits. and a military pairol stands guard at the top of the road.

The camp people feel vulnerable as hostages to reprisals from the gangs of Sinbalese goondas (thugs) who drove them from their homes in the first place. The example of the Sahra and Chatila refugee camos in Beirut is never far from their miods. Official figures show that there are 48.000 refugees in camps throughout the country, but according to relief workers, Colombo alone holds more Relief workers say the camps are sanitary. Now that food and fuel are getting in, additional latrines are being dug and camp committees are being formed. Difficulties still occur with the removal of garbage and the lavatories and water. One camp has only one tap and people have to line up for hours to get water.

A British worker for Voluntary Service Overseas has bad to seek asylum in a refugee camp after the college he was working at had been hurned down hy gangs of Sinhalese

When the Sinhalese at-tacked the college last week he had to run across some open fields, and eventually arrived at a convent in the centre of town, which is being used to house refugees. Mr Putnam, who is in his fifties, is the only European in the camp. He is being lodged in the hishop's house at the convent. The VSO organization in Colombo is waiting for the right moment to evacuate him.

Thirty-four British voluoteers from VSO have been working in the country and all have been accounted for except for one other, also in the plantation area, whose telephone is

The Tamils, meanwhile, must also wait. The government is offering to transport the refugees to the north of Sri Lanka, where the Tamil population predominates and where many, though not all, have friends and relatives. Ships are being adapted to take them up the coast. One refugee was pleased. "I don't think it would be safe going by train or road," he said. Two cargo boats have now left carrying more than 1,000 people.

The local hospital in Jaffna has been unable to undertake operations because of a shortage of medical supplies and drugs, and there are fears that the arrival of 8.000 refugees on boats from the South will cause acute hardship in the crowded towns.

The reports will not stop the refugees. "This has happened before, you know," said a tall, dark man.
"The last time was not as bad as this, but we came to this temple as well. We were taken to the North. and after things settled down, we came back. I expect we shall come British citizens in the North say enough jobs up there."

our more successful entrepreneurs the day after his appointment as chairman of a nationalized industry had been announced. "Are you out of your mind?" I asked politely. "Oh no, there's method in my madness", was the reply. "It enables me to quit the National Enterprise Board."

I saw his point. Nevertheless running a public corporation bas little ohviously to commend it. unless of course you can get yourself a transfer fee a la MacGregor. The new arrival from the private sector finds himself confronted with limitless Whiteball intervention, the whims of ministers with an eye to votes, an ohligation to satisfy the someumes idle curiosity of the legislators, and a intally unionized and often militantly organized labour force. He then finds that his remuneration for his pains, albeit modest hy the standards of the private sector, is the subject of an annual wrangle and ahuse.

So Sir Robert Atkinson's farewell message from British Shipbuilders after three years' hard labour deserves sympathetic understanding. It needs it, too. Anoouncing that. the corporation lost more than £117m in its last financial year, even though the Government offers a solid gold gift-wrapped coffee-pot or two to every customer, he tells us that this "demonstrated once again that this "demonstrated once again the underlying viability of the industry." "Once again" is an especially appealing grace-note.

Now I read in my Times on Monday morning, on the authority of Mr Gerald Kaufman, that all that's really wrong with British shipbuilding is the shameful lack of patriotism of its potential British customers. The Belgians buy their ships at home, as do the Freoch, and of course the Japanese. So why can't the British shipping lines do likewise? Perhaps it depends on whether they want ships or cash. Provided you don't mind when, or even whether, the vessels you bave ordered are delivered, and find that compensation can be good for cash flow (and one can easily imagine customers with such preferences in the present state of the world shipping market), then Scott Lithgow on the Clyde is obviously the place to go. Up to £100m in penalty payments in respect of goods worth £150m is not to be sneezed at. Unless, of course, you happen to be a British taxpayer, in which case you may be tempted to wonder whether this is the ideal way to use your

Sir Robert Atkinson tells us that these little local difficulties will be non-recurring. Perhaps we had better keep our fingers crossed. For as Sir Robert also acknowledged. there does seem to be some incidence of industrial deafness at Scott Lithgow (and one or two other places, for that matter). I do not see how we could expect it otherwise -not through any fault of Sir Robert, but through the actions of successive governments over many years. Sir Robert tells Scott Lithgow bleakly. "One cannot carry on with a company with 5,000 deaf men". The trouble is that the Clydeside shippard workers have been given that message or competition similar. that message – or something similar – repeatedly for 15 years, starting with Mr Wedgwood Benn, no less, in 1968. And every time they bave found that the politicians didn't mean it. Why should they believe it is for real, as perhaps it will be? That, in a nutshell, is the question which Mr Kaufman and others like him carefully avoid. Most people would probably accept the need for a national capacity to build warships. And it may well be that work would on occasion have to be found to keep that capacity in existence when the Ministry of Defence was strapped for cash and the world awash with surplus shipping. But using a public corporation as a cash transfusion service for BP when that company cannot get the vessels it has ordered (or for that matter as a provider of badly needed hard currency to the Polish Government. which was more or less how British Shiphuilders was treated by the Callaghan government) is a vastly different matter. It is not immediatly apparent that reliance on foreign shipyards for the supply of merehant shipping would be an excessive price to pay for release from future resort to such subterfuges to keep the likes

If he can also convince the merchant shipping yards that their future geotimely hinges on performance after all these years of crying wolf, he will earn his ransfer fee twice over.

Mondale and the Foot factor

Morton Kondracke parades the spectres of failures past that could tilt the balance against Reagan's main Democratic challenger

American political writers seem set on the notion that former Vice-President Walter Mondale, frontrunoer for the Democratic presidenual nomination, is haunted by ghosts. They simply cannot agree on how many. David Broder of the Washington Post named ooe: former Senator Edmund S. Muskie, the 1972 front-runner whose candidacy collapsed in its first test. Another writer added the failed presidency of Mr Jimmy Carter, in which Mondale was partner, and the image of Mondale's mentor, the late Senator Hubert Humphrey, the oldfashioned interest-group liberal whom Mondale is increasingly accused of resembling More recently, Mr Michael Foot has been added to the list. In America be is preceived as the symbol of a political party gone too far left to attract popular support; the Democrats, some commentators say, have a mild case of Labour's Mondale's other newly discovered ghost actually has been around for a long time. It is that of Mondale himself - the Mondale of November 1974 who announced after a year of campaigning for the 1976 Democratic nomination that he did not want to spend the rest of his life in Holiday Inns. He said: "I do not have the overwhelming desire to be president which is essential for the kind of campaign that is required".

All of Mondale's ghosts reflect the widely-held doubts about his ability to win election and govern well. He is well aware of them all. and the efforts he and his advisers are undertaking to exorcise the ghosts convey a sense of how he is conducting his pursuit of the presidency.

The 1974 Mondale is the easiest to dispose of. Nominally a Washington lawyer, he has been planning or otherwise working on the 1984 presidential race ever since the Carter-Mondale ticket lost to the Republican team of Reagan and Bush in 1980. This year, Mondale will be on the road to make specches, raise money and organize his forces on an average of six or seven days a week, three weeks per month. And he will stay in Holiday lnns without a murmur.

What has happened to change his mind? He said: "In 1974, deep down I knew I wasn't ready to be president. Now, f know I am. I've had the experience of working in the White House. I know how things are done and how mistakes get made. I'm convinced I can run the government, that I've got the vision.

Which brings up the ghost of Jimmy Carter. How to handle the memory of Carter's presidency and his nwn involvement in it has been a ticklish issue for Mondale. Cartoonists and presidential rivals often seek to tie Carter's failures around Mondale's neck. But when Mondale tries to point out differences he had with Carter, he is accused of disloyalty and ingratitude.

So, Mondale now expresses gratitude and loyalty to Carter for the opportunity to be vice-president while asserting that Carter's mis-takes were part of the training programme that qualifies him to be PHS president. If asked, Mondale will in the usual backbiting and hickering between the White House, State Department and Pentagon.

Carter, differences

Humphrey: too many ties

Mondale says that instead of the myriad purposes to which Carter set himself, his administration would have "four or five fundamental thrusts". These include economic "human talent development", international competitiveness, moderate and sustained defence growth, determined efforts to secure arms control and "a foreign policy that is coberent, credible, durable and persuasive, with a moral underpinning."

On both foreign and domestic policy, Mondale is considerably to the left of the Reagan adminto the ten of the keagan administration, as are all the other Democratic candidates, including Mondale's principal ... the senator and former astronaut John Glenn. All criticize the administration for favouring the rich by cutting taxes while imposing benefit reductions on the poor.

All would spend less than Reagan on defence and more on education and job-creating public works. They are all against the MX missile, favour a negotiated nuclear weapons freeze with the Soviet Union (though they have not made much of an issue of cruise missiles in Britain or Pershings in Germanyl and they oppose US aid to anti-Sandinista guerrillas in Nicaragua.

These positions may sound quite moderate to Europeans. Most Democratic proposals are probably even to the right of those favoured by Britaio's social democrats. But still he is baunted by the ghost of Michael Foot, and even more so by that of Hubert Humphrey. In his day, Humphrey represented the quintessence of a Democratic

"special interest candidate" in 1984, if he runs, will be Ronald Reagan, who during his presidency hasn't said no even once to defence contractors, environmental polluters, segregationist schools, cor-porations or rich people". As to the Democratic constituent groups, he said. "I am not to turn my back on my friends, but I am not their captive. I want to see the national interest served, hut you cannot do that by refusing to listen to people who represent other people. One of Carter's hig mistakes, say Mondale aides, is precisely that he thought he could govern without listening to the constituencies which helped elect him. As a result, he had no friends when the going got rough, Mondale is especially dismissive of the Foot parallel. "The Labour Party committed suicide", he said. They were almost isolationist in terms of the (Nato) alliance and the Common Market. They were talking about all kinds of new nationalizatioo schemes. They picked leader-ship that was unsteady and unper-suasive. I saw polls that showed that Denis Healey might defeat Margaret Thatcher - in other words, a pragmatic progressive was maybe what the people were looking for. But he didn't get a shot at it".

Still. Mondale does not give adequate attention to a tendeocy within his party to move left during the primary election stage of a presidential campaign as the rival indidates try to out-do each other for the allegiance of special interest activists. Strong anti-nuclear and isolationist seotiments, for example, affect the Democratic parties of lowa and New Hampshire, where the first tests of 1984 will take place. Those sentiments are being exploited by Senator Alan Cranstoo, who has made the ouclear freeze centerpiece of his campaign. If Cranston seems to be succeeding there will be leftward pressure on all the other candidates, including

But Edmund Muskie's spectre remains the most important for Mondale. It is that of a supposed sure thing" whose support proved (in one of America's favourite political cliches) a mile wide and an inch deep and had no capacity to survive adversity. In 1972 Senator George McGovero had an issue (the Vietnam war) and an intense following which over-whelmed Muskie in the New Hampshire primary.

The worst-case scenario for Mondale-as-Muskie in 1984 would be that Alan Cranston pulls away the anti-nuclear vote; that the Rev Jesse Jackson, a disciple of Martin Luther King decides to run and draws away Mondale's black support: that Senator Glenn convinces people that he alone can defeat President Reagan, pulling away the pragmatic politicians, and that Mondale is left with nothing, or at least too little to win the nomination.

The Mondale campaign's answer is unrelenting effort and minute artention to detail. It aims to create an organization so big that it can withstand any adversity, yet suffiwithstand any adversity, yet suffi-ciently flexible to anticipate oppor-tunity and take advantage of it. Moodale's campaign has already raised more than $5m - dnuble the amount of the other five candidates put ingether. The campaign staff consists of the best veterans of the 1976 and 1980 Carter campaigns.

Moodale has been endorsed by members of Congress, local politicians and leaders of hiack, women's and Hispanic groups. He is thought to be far ahead in pursuit of the AFI CIO's first are endorse. the AFL-CIO's first-ever endorsement of a presidential candidate. Give Nicaragua a chance

Armed conflict lends to generate simplistic labels. Even so, it was disappointing last week to find BBC television veotriloquizing the Voice of America on its Nine O'Clock News by referring in a straight report to "the Marxist government"

io Nicaragua. This shorthand crudely misrepresents the character of the Nicaraguan regime. Its three-member coalition junta includes Dr Rafael Cordova Rivas, a leading figure in the Democratic Conservative Party, whose nearest equivalent in this. country would be Sir lan Gilmour. Far from being a fully socialized economy. Nicaragua has, in fact, a larger private sector (59 per cent of gross domestic product) than Thatcherite Britain. Nor is the Nicaraguan regime completely tied to the coat-tails of the eastern block; 43 per cent of its aid, according to the latest available figures (1981), comes from the West. Most on-the-spot observers, ineluding many who are aggressively anti-Marxist, bave a favourable impression of what the new government has achieved since it toppled the Somoza dictatorship. An all-party British parliamentary delegation concluded that "there is much to praise in Nicaragua. The new government bas made a determined attack on poverty by raising the living standards of the poorest and bas made impressive achievements in the fields of literacy, health and education."

But just as the Nicaraguan government has been crudely caricatured by the right as a Stalinist state, so there has been a corresponding tendency on the left to romanucize the aftermath of the 1979 revolution. The spectacular growth rate achieved in 1980 and 1981 has petered out in the face of the deepening recession, something close to an investment strike in the private sector, and the economic reprisals of the United States. Tensions have mounted, as the right has chased under Attlee-style austerity measures, while a section of the left has become increasingly frustrated by the unwillingness of the government to press ahead with further nationalization.

These pressures, combined with nilitary raids hy American-backed insurgents based in Honduras, provoked the government to adopt emergency powers in 1981 that curbed freedom of expression by opposition groups and newspapers. At least seven leading dissidents (from both left and right) were imprisoned under these powers but were subsequently released.

But the systematic use of police torture and the killing of dissidents that characterized the previous tyrannical regime has come to an end. The country is also free of the death squads linked to security forces that terrorized communities in El Salvador and to a lesser extent. Honduras, porurayed io American propaganda as bastions of freedom and democracy.

Much play has been made of the fact that no election has been held in Nicaragua since the revolution in 1979. An election has been promised, however, for 1985 and a government commission is currently investigating different methods of election in western countries as a prelude to this. What sort of recommendation the commission makes will be closely scrutinized in the light of the largely bogus elections that President Reagan frequently cites as evidence of budding democracy" in nearby states under American tutelage. In the case of Honduras, the military retained the right to veto all cabinet appointments, while the choice offered the depleted electorate of El Salvador was limited in the words of the British observer, Lord Chitnis. to "that between an impotent and split Conservative Party under the thumb of the military, and a murderous version of the National Front."

Of course, President Reagan, the best auto-cue reader in contemporary politics, is following a script dictated by American interests. His main concern is not so much the development of human rights and freedom, as the maintenance of American influence in Central America. The Nicaraguan revolution is a threat to these interests because it could inspire similar uprisings against corrupt but com-pliant dictatorships sustained by the American government.

The continued support of the Nicaraguan government among its own people has so far insulated it from American reprisals: American funding of opposition groups inside Nicaragua has failed to mobilize popular opposition to the government. Economic hardship induced by the cancelling of aid and the siashing of the sugar import quota has not destabilized the government. Even the covert war waged by CIAfinanced rebels, mostly recruited from the murderous former National Guardsmen, has not provoked the expected response from disenehanted groups.

That is why the American government seems to be moving towards a final, more drastic solution: a direct invasion of Nicaragua hy its puppet government in Honduras with whatever backing is needed to make it successful. This would be as deplorable an act of aggression as Russia's invasion of Afghanistan. And it should provoke every hit as much protest, not least since Britain, as an ally of America, is in a position to induence American policy in a way that it is not able to sway that of Russia. But even if American gunboat diplomacy is stopped, there is sadly an insidious way in which it may yet succeed. The more economic and military pressure the United States generates, the more it will promote authoritarian and centralizing pressures within Nicaragua. If these pressures gain impetus within a beleaguered economy they will discredit the hopes and aspirations that the revolution gave rise to.

wig, a mitre or a green eyeshade, is yet competent to make that pronouncement. To murder is for a person of sound mind and of the age of discretion unlawfully to kill another with malice aforethought, either express or implied by law. It is a defence to murder that the killing was caused by the use of reasonable force in the prevention of crime or effecting lawful arrest, elements which include self-defence. The Cardinal will have been given circumstantial accounts of the death as contained in the evidence of eyewitnesses carefully recorded by priests of his diocese. Those accounts very likely suggest that a murder was committed. But one begs leave to doubt if the Cardinal has access, direct or indirect, to the evidence of the members of the UDR patrol. Without that knowledge it is unsafe to cry murder. It is particularly unsafe for one in cardinal's robes to cry murder.

From the partial accounts of the incident that have been published it appears that a small group of young men and women were gathered and chatting near the centre of the city at one a.m. on a warm summer's night. Thoy were approached by an armed UDR patrol of men and women soldiers, who asked questions and took particulars. Somo

This is the seventh man to be No one, whether he wears a shot dead by police or soldiers in county Armagh in the past eighteen months. It is frequently alleged, and as frequently denied, that the security forces have a policy of "shoot to kill" IRA and INLA suspects. The outward and visible facts do not point persuasively to that conclusion. The tension caused by the open policy of the terrorist organizations to kill soldiers and pohcemen on and off duty, the alertness to danger and quick reaction on which survival thus depends, provide an alternative and adequate explanation of the pattern of shootings, though not of course a full explanation of any one of them.

Soldiers and policemen have no licence to kill in Northern Ireland that they do not possess in other parts of the United Kingdom. Their action is subject to the requirements of common. law, the two chief elements of which, if the shooting is to be lawful, are that the situation must be one of the commission or apprehension of serious crime and that the force used is no greater than might reasonably be supposed to be necessary to prevent the crime or escape, or in self-defence.

The just application of those rules in any case crucially depends on the thorough investigation of the facts. It is at that point that the suspicions and

Among the victims' families and community the RUC is likely to be considered as trustworthy an investigating agency as is the Metropolitan Police by the denizens of Railton Road in Brixton. The RUC's inquiries, if thorough, are cer-tainly not speedy. The director of public prosecutions to whom the police report will make a laconic announcement that there are insufficient grounds for proceeding farther, if that is his conclusion which it usually is, and the true nature of the circumstances of the death will remain unclear. It is however quite wrong to suggest that members of the security forces, never stand trial for unlawful killing in Northern Ireland. They do, but seldom. Seldom too is anyone suspended from duty while inquiries are made.

There is none of that electrified reaction on the part of authority to a possible miscarriage, as happened in London when Mr Stephen Waldorf was shot (not killed) by police in mistake for another man. Of course, the state is under attack in Ulster by political gangsters who have no scruple and no reserve, and that is an inevitably callousing experience. The vicious hatred of the attack can be read from the details of the trial of 38 defendants which is just coming to an end in Belfast after 117 days. But the state is defended from that attack in the name of legitimate authority, of civil peace and the rule of law. It behoves those bearing that responsibility to keep intact the doing of justice and the appearance of justice, most especially when the actions of their own refused to answer. Other young complaints of Cardinal O Finish agents are called in question.

An official report complained that on average one in ten of the workers in the state sector was absent and the others did lessthan five hours' work a day. A member of the Kraigher Commission which was charged with the preparatory work for the reforms predicted serious labour problems because the strict conditions requested by foreign creditors would have to be met. Yugoslavs can expect a drop in living standards and general demands to tighten their belts as measures are enforced to ensure the repayment of debts.

After the visit in March of tho Soviet Prime Minister Nikolai Tikhonov, further trading agreements were signed with the USSR, which is Yugoslavia's major supplier of oil. The need to pay in scarce hard currency is avoided by delivering in exchange a range of products from electronics to foodstuffs. But Western fears of growing economic reliance on the USSR are misplaced. Diplomatic relations with the USSR are much less bitter than in the past, but Yugoslavia remains highly critical of Soviet policies. The large expenditure of manpower and other resources on defence is accepted by most Yugoslavs as necessary. Soviet intervention in Czechoslovakia and Afghanistan is subjected to repeated criticism in the media, and Yugoslavia has no intention of suffering the same fate. Although no liberal democracy, Yugoslavia is moving closer to the West both politically and economically. This trend should be encouraged. Yugoslavia is strategically placed. Western support for it is very much a matter of enlightened self-interest.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

cost of power

From the Chairman of the London Electricity Board

Sir, While I cannot approve of Mr Alex Henney's enthusiasm (August 1) for a pre-publication public debate of the LEB's 1982-83 accounts (publication is on August 4). I must, to ensure an accurate public record, take issue with him on a number of points he makes to support his council's view that we should pass on our surplus to consumers in the form of a rebate.

It is not, as he implies, the practice of the board's members to "rubber stamp" reports by chief officers. The recommendation not to repay the surplus was debated long and hard before being supported.

The board did not vote "to retain the money". It decided to use the surplus to pay off its debt to Government in the firm belief that this would result in a real prospect of keeping electricity prices down in years to come.

His dismissive attitude to administrative problems belies the genuine difficulties of identifying to whom a rebate should be paid. Not all consumers would have been eligible and, bearing in mind the high turnover of London consumers, some would be difficult to trace.

These particular matters aside, it is the nature of Mr Henney's letter that disappoints me. In the last few years the board has made great strides in improving efficiency and reducing costs. (We have, in fact, reduced our staff by I,400 and cut our costs by £14m.) Yet Mr Henney, as a member of the board and present at the debate in question, chooses to write to you in advance of the publication of the annual accounts, discusses the board's proceedings and offers a one-sided account of the process by which fellow members reached their decision on the rebate.

My colleagues and I fully accept our accountability to the public through Parliament for the performance of LEB, but the board will not function properly unless its members have respect for each other.

I regret this lack of inhibition regarding the board's deliberations and urge him to have a higher regard for the confidentiality and freedom of expression without which there can be no bold thinking and effective decision making.

Yours faithfully, D. G. JEFFERIES, Chairman, London Electricity Board, Templar House, 81-87 High Holborn, WC1.

Control of asbestos

From Professor E. D. Acheson and Dr M. J. Gardner Sir, In your brief reference to our

"The control limit for report. asbestos", in your issue of July 29 you mentioned that we recommended the formal prohibition of the manufacture and importation of new products made of brown or blue

We wish to point out that we also recommended that, in view of the fact all forms of asbestos (including white asbestos) can cause cancer, the use of all types of asbestos should be curtailed as safer and effective substitutes become available and in the meantime further improvements in control should be made as advances in engineering occur.

In making these recommen-dations we took into account that asbestos is extremely durable and that products containing it may require further processing in circumstances far removed from its production where dust levels are difficult to control. Yours faithfully,

DONALD ACHESON, Director and Professor of Clinical Epidemiology, M. J. GARDNER, Reader in Medical Statistics, MRC Environmental Epidemiology

Musical manners

From Mr N. J. Bonham-Carter Sir, I am afraid that Mr Harvey's letter (July 25) is little more than an expression of personal taste masquerading as an aesthetic judgment. If it tnok me no more than 30 years to like a wide range of "this stuff" (his phrase). I do not consider that this gives me any particular right to exalt my taste or judgment over that of others.

All the same, I should be inclined to back Mr Ponsonby's judgment (July 12) of what is "alive, beautiful and necessary to our lives in the musical field over Mr Harvey's, on the evidence of his letter.

Yours faithfully, N. J. BONHAM-CARTER. Old School House, Cretingham, Woodbridge, Suffolk.

Limits of parole

From the Chairman of Council of the Mogistrates' Association Sir. The waste of their own and the community's resources represented by offenders is at a high level and the general trend is upward.

This needs to be tackled, not only at the stage of prevention, but also at any point where the risk of recidivism can be reduced. A point where this possibility should be examined is outlined in Lord Windlesham's letter (July 21).

Rightly the suggested minimum period of eligibility for parole does not except when they are sitting in the crown court, directly affect the jurisdiction of magistrates. The maximum sentence of six months' imprisonment which they may impose for a single offence does not

Keeping down the Science spending and tangible assets

From Professor S. J. Pirt

Sir, The latest contribution by Sir Bernard Lovell (July 30) to the special pleading by the astronomers for more resources is revealing. Sir Bernard's letter is a concoction of red herring and Marie Antoinette sentiment, "Let them eat cake", as far as scientists of other disciplines are concerned.

He attempts to divert attention from the real issue, which is that the Science and Engineering Research Council (SERC) has a cash limit and that more resources for astronomy means less for the other sciences. Shrewdly, Sir Bernard expresses the astronomers' share of the budget as a percentage, but in money terms 17 per cent of the budget now is far more than 24 per cent of the 1975

In comparison, the new field of biotechnology, which is so full of promise, received less than half of one per cent of the SERC budget last year. About that amount was spent by the SERC a few years ago on an enquiry just to show that a new radio telescope proposed for Sir Bernard's laboratory would be prohibitively expensive.

It is plainly ludicrous to claim that the astronomers are not big spenders of the SERC funds. With regard to the "timeliness and promise" of the big telescope laboratories, doubts have been raised by recent disinterested analysis of their research outputs.

This disturbing result has, it is clear, stimulated the research councils to commission further analyses of a similar nature. However, Sir Bernard need not worry too much because it seems that the SERC prefers to spend its money on a tangible asset, such as a telescope, rather than the intangible promise of research.

Yours faithfully, S. J. PIRT. queen Elizabeth College. Microbiology Department, Atkins Building, Campden Hill Road, WS.

From Professor P. V. Danckwerts, FRS Sir. Sir Bernard Lovell writes to support the spending of very large sums of money on telescopes which will lead to a deeper understanding of the natural world. Similar arguments can and have been deployed for expenditure on enormous particle accelerators, or "rings" such as those built near Geneva, which remind one irresistibly of Stonehenge.

A small bonus

From the Reverend Julian Charley and others

Sir. If the Government is to prove its equal concern for the less fortunate members of society as for amuent, as recently urged by Mr Francis Pym, there is one anomalous situation that could very simply be rectified.

As the law stands, someone drawing supplementary benefit is not allowed to carn more than £4 extra per week, whereas for those who are in regular employment there is no such limit when they take on secondary jobs. The implication of the law is that those on supplementary benefit are a drain on the state's resources and should be penalised accordingly.

A jump too far

From Professor N. Kurti, FRS Sir, Your article about parachutists (page 2, July 28) reminded me of the following episode. A couple of years ago I was asked by a young student to "sponsor" his paracoute jump for a good cause. I told him that I refused to encourage anyone to engage in an activity which could result in injury or damage to health, but that I would send a donation to his good cause. It was a respectable unit engaged in orthopaedic deve-

Red Cross in Thailand

From Mr William Shawcross Sir, Count de Salis, the former chief delegate of the International Committee of the Red Cross in Thailand, protests too much (July 20) at my description (June 27) of the plight of refugees from Indochina today.

De Salis takes exception to my account of what happened to 20,000 Cambodians brought into Thailand and then returned to the border, even though 2,000 of them had petitioned ICRC and the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) for protection.

Officials of UNHCR, of which I was more critical, considered the article was "too generous" in this context to that excellent organization, the ICRC. They complained that on this occasion ICRC showed an inadequate sense of urgency over the petitions and then pressured UNHCR not to intervene on behalf allow time for the necessary assessment. Nevertheless, if powers granted by Parliament in the Criminal Justice Act 1982 are assumed by the Home Secretary and the minimum statutory period for release on parole is shortened, this may well have the effect of reducing the number of adult recidivists

Those in prison represent inad-

Support, on release, for the former and the sanction of recall for the latter may be the best hope of deterrence from the reoffending which puts the public so much at risk. Paid jobs for all

From Mr Alan Eden-Green Sir, Why does Francis Bennion (July

28) assume that there will never again be paid jobs for all? Certainly we can see a future in which much hitherto done by humans will be done by courtesy of the new technology. But can we not envisage a society in which the rest is roughly divided between those able and willing to work for money? Could we not devise a system whereby most people worked for about 20 hours a week (or nine months a year, say,) rather than only some of them doing 40?

It has for long seemed absurd that many industrial executives are today working a longer week than their grandfathers did. Most of them would like more leisure, more realty free time, hut our economic system seems to insist on putting all the work into fewer hands. It ought not to be too difficult to change that.

The present law encourages

De Salis objects to my saying that the two organizations "dithered".

Perhaps I should have said "squabbled". In any case, their ability to agree on admittedly difficult protection issues, after working for four years on the problem, is hardly helpful to the refugees. Indeed, it is shameful.

My article dealt with the boat people as well as the border. It made very clear that the organisations are dependent on the will of governments and that they now have inadequate support from the western donors. Supervision on parole is of tried success with many serious offenders. Those with shorter sentences may well be serving a first custodial senience or have committed crimes of lesser gravity. Offering them similar prospects of release should bring similar results. The scheme could, of course, only be conditional upon resources for genuine and rigorous assessment in prison and for the requisite standard of supervision by probation officers

Parental duties and the Pill

From Mr M. L. Barrett

Sir, The assumption made (July 30) the National Honorary Secretary of the Responsible Society is baseless. It is the responsibility of parents to imbue their children with the belief that the act of procreation is better left until maturity. If a gir under 16 asks her doctor for the Pill the assumption to be made is that her parents have either rejected that responsibility or failed in their attempt to discharge it - after some 12 years or more of trying.

It is no bad thing that the state should do what it can to avoid there being any little pieces to pick up. Yours sincerely MARTIN L. BARRETT.

Grey House, Beeches Drive. Farnham Common, Slough, Buckinghamshire. August 1.

From Mr R. J. A. Long Sir, The two court cases referred to by Mr Barker (August I) wherein the judgments removed parental control over the children involved are fundamentally different to the action raised by Mrs Gillick. The act of the court in these reported cases was to consider whether the natural parental authority should be overturned, thereby giving the exception to the usual rule. The courts presumably require to see considerable negligence by the parents or circumstances likely to cause obvious harm to the child before upsetting the status quo.

Gillick v West Norfolk and Wisbech Area Health Authority was an attempt to ensure that parental authority continues unless it can be proved in court that it is misplaced There has been no such jndgment in this case, or is Mrs Gillick guilty until proved innocent?

Sir, I remain, yours faithfully, R. J. A. LONG, 12/3 Craigleith Avenue South, Ravelston, Edinburgh.

From Dr A. R. Rogers Sir, Your correspondent, Ian Barker (August 1), makes the point that on matters of under-age sex and contraception parental authority may not always respond in the best interests of the child, Indeed he is right, but when parents are neglectful, absent or non-caring there exists adequate legislation under the Children and Young Persons Act to bring those in moral danger and under 17 into care. Thus a doctor would be acting correctly to extend professional confidence to include those properly concerned with the care of his patient.

Sadiy, all too often such young people are taken into care, only to be issued contraception by the local authority. The issue of providing contraception to children is certainly one of law, but is also a testing area of whether society has the will to provide children with a fully protected childhood. For so many young people childhood seems to end at 12 or 13 and if, indeed, we lack the will or intention to provide adequate care then we must accept changes in law should allow intercourse and marriage to take place earlier. In my opinion the disappearance of childhood is the most sinister and unwelcome social trend, taking many young victims back to the pre-Victorian days of child prostitution and neglect.

Yours faithfully. ADRIAN ROGERS. 1 Victoria Park Road, St Leonards, . Exeter, Devon August I.

Tax on Soviet charters

From Mr William F. Newton Dunn, MEP for Lincolnshire (European Democrat (Conservative)) Sir. The West's answer (leader, July

26) to price-cutting by the Soviet merchant fleet should be a special tax added on to the freight rates at which the Soviets charter their ships to Western customers.

If the tax were levied throughout the European Community it would cover a substantial proportion of world sea trade and even more so if the United States and Japan could be persuaded to do the same.

Not only would such a tax reduce Soviet price-cutting but it would also reduce their earnings of hard currencies with which to buy yet more ships from hard-pressed Western owners.

Astronomers find a comet's tail By Clive Cookson, Technology Correspondent

Observations from the Infrared · Astronomical · Satellite (1RAS), which seemed to show a swarm of unidentified objects moving together across the sky mystified astronomers at the IRAS cootrol centre at the Rutherford Laboratory, Oxfordshire. Then Dr John Davies, of Leicester University, realized that the satellite, launched in January, had detected the long tail of a well-known comet, Tempel 2, oo which oo tail had been seen before. (Leicester University astronomers have already spotted four new comets this year from IRAS data).

The discovery of the 20 million-mile long tail is exciting because Tempel beloogs to a class of comet, with a short orbit round the sun, which many astronomers had be-lieved to be tail-less. It might mean that all comets, even nid and fuded ones, have tails that would be visible in infrared Tempel 2's tail consists of dust blown from its nucleus and warmed by the sun ennugh to radiate in the infrared region of the spectrum. The radiation was just strong enough for the ultra-sensitive IRAS telescope but is prob-ably too faint in be detected oo Earth because of atmospheric absorption.

project, supported by Britain, the Netherlands and the United States, to survey infrared-emitting objects throughout the sky. le comiog weeks it will make further observations of Tempel 2 and its tail, to map the distribution and density of the dust to more

Ground-based observatories will also be photographing Tempel 2, in case the newly discovered tail can after all be detected io visible light. The comet made its closest npproach to the snn no June 1 and will pass within 100 million miles of the Earth io the autumn, but it is too faint

Though it won a Pulitzer Prize oo its first outing in 1936, and though its current Broadway revival with Jason Robards and Colleen Dewhurst is about the best thing to be seen in an otherwise moribund. New York Kaufman and Hart's classic comedy You Can't Take It With You remains curiously little-known over here; the National Theatre production opening tomorrow may however be about to:

This is the one about the eccentric Sycamore family, who survive the Depressinn in New York by becoming so totally detached from reality that they cease to exist even for income tax purposes: it is a play about love and egocentricity and immigration and mild luoacy in roughly that order, and like much of the best of Kaufman and Hart it affords an entire gallery of wonderful character studies from the refugee Russian ballet-master all the way through to the mother who speods ten years as a playwright because somebody unaccountably delivers a typewriter to her front door. For the National, a starry castlist includes Geraldioe McEwan, Brewster Mason, Margaret Courtenay and Ronald Hines, but the key role of the graodfather, the one being played on Broadway oow by Robards, goes to Jimmy Jewel in his first return to the National and indeed the live theatre. in almost a decade.

The last time he was there was when the company was still housed at the Vic and he was doing Comedians: We started that at Nottingham with Richard Eyre, also now here at the National, directing and Peter Hall came to the first night and asked how soon we could move down to the Vic. In fact it took about six months. because I'd already agreed to do The Sunshine Bors io the West End and they were good enough to wait for me. Mind you, that was the part of a lifetime: plays like Comedians don't happen twice. When I first read it I thought it was far too full of filthy language in the first act; not that I was shocked, but I knew that if all the rude words were spoken in the first act then the Jonathan Pryce character would oever be able to use them so shockingly io the second. Eyre agreed with me and eventually Trevor Griffiths, the author, did too; one of the joys of starting out on the halls is that you learn what an audience will take and when they'll take it."

Jimmy Jewel only started in the legitimate theatre when he was way past his fiftieth birthday:

Frank Muir was then running the comedy at the BBC and about fifteen years ago he asked me to do a Variety Playhouse script called Spanner in the Works. I'd never done a play before, but variety theatres were closing up all. over England, my cousin Ben Warriss was keen to end the double act and my wife and son took one look at the script and said, well, what have you got to lose? So I did it and since then I've been an actor. The irony is that now Ben is back in the business too, acting in a summer season of Hi-de-Hi no Bournemouth pier. But we'll oever do the act again. All that's over. Wheo Ben said he didn't want to go. on with it. I thought I was finished too so for a while I went into property, doing up flats to Kensington, I trained as a master carpenter, you see, before
I went on the halls, and I've always owned flats because I learnt to be very careful about the money I was making when times were good. I came from a music-hall family and I'd seen too many good comedians fall on hard. times not to learn a bit about where to put the money away.

"We were really a family called Marsh, but father always worked as Jimmy Jewel. He wouldn't let me call myself Jimmy Jewel Jr, so for years I worked as Maurice Marsh because I was always doing Chevalier im-pressions then we kept changing our names oo the bills so the audience wouldn't know it was all one family. Actors today don't know they're born. just having to rehearse and do one or two plays at a time; we used to have to pack the scenery, run the band calls, everything. For a while I went-off on my own, running what they used to call the 'If It' bills, for £6 a week you had to do the comedy spot. in the first balf of the bill twice nightly, then you had to manage the other acts, do the paying out oo the Saturday night, and if there was any money extra then you shared it out on a percentage basis: that's why they were called 'If It'.

Those were the days wheo I learnt to be careful about money: I used to have to go round paying out £6 a week to once-great comedians like Ernie Mayne who'd lost everything and gone so mad that be used to see maginary income-tax inspectors hiding in dressing-room cupboards. It was a rough business. But then I metgood years up the top of the bill: we never once had a quarrel, at least not wheo apyone else was there to see it. You have to run a double act like a marriage, stick to the rules, otherwise it all goes wrong. Mind you, hy the end the whole business had gone wrong the variety impresarios all weot ioto commercial television and allowed the old theatres to crumble away. When I started out, there were 22 theatres in the Greater Maochester area, all with different variety bills playing twice nightly six nights a week, and all that was allowed to crumble away to nothing because they throught there might be more mocey

"But once you're in the theatre you can never really leave it; all the time I had out in the 1960s, doing up the flats. I felt really terrible. Thought I was dyiog of something. The moment the script of that Variety Playhouse came along I felt marvellous again and that's how I've felt ever since. Then after quite a lot of television acting I thought maybe I was ready for a stage play, and Bernie Delfont brought me The Sunshine Boys, which was by Neil Simon but could just as well have been written about Jewel and Warries II. and Warriss. It was the story of a double act, so by the time I got to the auditioo in New York for Neil Simoo I already knew thirty years more about his play that he did. He kept asking me where I learnt the timing. Jewel and Warriss, I told him, but I don't think he knew much about the English music halls.

"Anyway he seemed to like me, so much io fact that when the Delfont deal fell through he let me buy the rights in the play myself for London and sent his own brother over to direct. Six mooths we did, at the Piccadilly, then Comedians again, then a lot more television plays and now this. Mind you, I made a few mistakes aloog the way: turned down a play at Hampstead called Incident at Tulse Hill because nobody bothered to tell me that Harold Pioter was going to direct it, and I thought who needs a play about an actor's suicide io a railway tunnel when there are three millioo unemployed? But I've just done a television film for David Puttnam, all about a cricket groundsman fighting for bis job against a new committee, and that should be on Channel 4 this actumn.

"Once you've played the Empire Glasgow you know two things:

Jewel as grandfather in You Can't Take It With You survival, and humility. That's really all an actor needs, that and a good script. There's a book by Neville Shute called The Pied Piper, about an old Englishmao leading children out of Occupied France in the war, That's what I want to do next, as a six-part television series, if I can just get the rights. I don't have any great classical yearnings: people keep telling me I'd be marvellous in Chekhov but I can't understand a word of it, and I could never get the rhythm of Shaw's language right for Doolittle in Pygmalion. Arthur English managed it marvellously oo television but I could never get near it. Then they offered me Lear and the Merchant of Fenice at Exeter, so I went out and bought both books and couldn't understand a bloody word of them either. It's no good doing things you can't understand or won't enjny; if you're not going to be happy on stage, then how is the audience going to enjoy it? As soon as I start becoming an embarrassment to myself or other people in the theatre, that's when I'll stop. Until then, it's the best life in the

Art of Cricket Fine Art Society

The British Museum's current Sporting Life exhibition seems to open up an infinitude of possibilities. Why range so widely - would there not be more than enough material in just one sport? Why be so narrow - how about including paintings and sculptures as well as prints? As though in answer 10 both these questions, John Player has sponsored a sizable exhibition, and a substantial book to go with it, devoted exclusively to that most English of games, cricket. Art of Cricket, which Ross found perfect at the Fine Art Society until trations of warmth and Angiest 13, begins at the beginning in the approved manner, and goes on, if not must the end (for who would

Bad Language

Hampstead

In the first scene of Dusty Hughes's play, a student complains that the college clocks stopped in the 1930s and gets the reply "What better prep-aration for the 1980s?" True enough.

The place has been sufficiently infiltrated by structuralism, drugs and girl undergraduates to justify the description "Cam-bridge at the present time", while the guilt-laden contrast between this privileged elite and their unemployed cootempor-aries takes you back fifty years. It is easy to work out which of these boys and girls would have helped to break the General Strike and which would have died in Spain.

Bad Language does more than draw this simple equation. partly, I suspect, lest it be found simple-minded. Unlike his Cambridge contemporary David Hare, in Teeth 'n Smiles, Mr Hughes still seems to be taken in by the glamour of the place, and to cherish the idea that the doings of the Oxbridge young are news.

As a result, he has converted particular university theme into a standard university play. The cast - students and a supervisor from the English faculty - figure as aesthetes ranged against the unseen rowing hearties. There is an old college scout, scandalized at the goings-on of the young gentlemen. Finals and the ADC production are simultaneously looming, and the supervisor is having problems with the brightest pupil.

Most of the characters are sharply drawn and played to the narcissistic, rebellious or cynical life by Mike Bradwell's com-pany. There is the golden-haired

Robin Lermitte as a Wunderkind director, projecting a precise blend of precocious authority and naked vulnerability through perfectly articulated sentences and a dandy's profile. He has an equally arresting room-mate in Kevin Whately as a working-class high flyer churned up with Lawrentian confusions. Breffni McKenoa, sliding mto drug addiction, and Anjela Belli, loading her beloved teacher with stolen books, likewise slide vertiginously between poise and precariousness. And there is a marvellous performance from Alan Rickman as the supervisor, laceratingly derisive nn first encounter and then bringing the same quality to bear nn getting them all out of trouble. What the production is unable to do is to cut the ties between the characters and the writer. Just as Mr Lermitte and his gang of "Illyrians" are determined above all to impress and glitter, so Mr Hughes sweats like mad to give his play an amusing and provocative surface. The dialogue often seems to reflect the process of starting with a cliché and then thinking of something different.

Part of a supervisor's job is to act as moral counsellor: so, naturally, Mr Rickman has 10 sleep with his students. Naturally the hearties break up the ADC set; so Mr Hughes then goes ahead and electrocutes them. The writing is always intelligent, and some-times very funny. It is also strained, and leaves the real cliches (such as an attempted suicide curtain line) fully exposed. Genff Ruse's set, doing duty for tutorials, late-night drinking and theatrical dressing room, at least feels like Cam-bridge 1983.

I admit to looking forward to Philharmonia seemed particularly auspicious. If hopes were not entirely fulfilled it was not so much that there were occasional orchestral blemishes but that certain passages were treated io a manner that seemed out of character with the interpretation as a whole.

The Adagio, for instance, was dnne with wistful restraint. The broad clarinet solo was elegantly played by Jnhn McCaw and the discreet cello and bassoon counterpoint nicely underlined. But music of similar mood at the centre of the Scherzo was heavily laden with portamentos and sounded

Human warmth is not perthis performance with special haps the quality that comes first relish. A stream of City analysts has been wearing out the welcome mat at Redland this week looking for further evidence that the group has finally thrown off the affects of the recession in the building indus-

Yesterday it was the turn of Rowe & Pitman, the brokers, who followed close on the heels nf De Znete & Bevan earlier this week. According to De Zoete the huilding sector has under-performed the rest of the market by up to 13 per cent so far this year, but the worst may be over. It regards Redland as a cheap long-term huy following words of encouragement from the

The group's UK operations appear 10 be doing well, with the recovery in Germany continuing apace. As a result De Zoete is still looking for pretax profits of £81m in the current year compared with £66.3m last Yesterday the shares respunded in the news with a rise of 6p to 238p. The market was anxinusly awaiting the findings nf Rowe & Pitman's trip to confirm the trend.

It now emerges

The Stock Exchange blocked broker Statham Duff Stoop's proposed placing of 3.5 million shares at 30p in Pevril, The earliest opportunity for the publisher and greeting cards group. Statham say the issue was blocked on a "point of principle" and it hopes to launch the shares later this year with a full profits forecast for the year to October 31, 1984. Last night the company was meeting the Stock Exchange.

We have maintained a policy of investing in the Home Entertainment and high technology Engineering businesses. We responded to the strong demand throughout the year for video cassette recorders by continuing to invest heavily in rental equipment. In Engineering, we created an Information Technology division to co-ordinate our interests in this field and to provide a platform for future growth. We have expanded and broadened the base of the Electronics business companies. Dividends Following an unchanged interim dividend of 4.05p per share an increased final dividend of 11.70p per share is recommended, making a total of 15.75p for the full year - an overall increase of 7.7%.

The Future The current year has started better than the early months of last year and the year should produce some further improvement in results. This assumes only a modest real growth in the general level of business activity and the improvement will arise mainly from action taken in earlier years to increase investment in Home Entertainment and high technology Engineering and to reduce or conserve resources elsewhere.

It demonstrates how the company has risen to meet our customers' expectations.

World-wide success: Basis for the quality of our work.
The high production standard of BMW vehicles is one of the reasons for this development.

During the past four years of economic uncertainty in many major markets, BMW exports have increased in sales volume and market share.

This s demand encourages us to make even .ive investments in innovative products and new production technology.

The recently-introduced 3-Series demonstrates the high quality level possible and attainable today.

The future looks good.
Orders taken during the first months of this year permit us to be optimistic about our 1983 results. With the clear objective of consolidating and developing our world-wide position, our Investment in new technology and product quality will continue to be higher than average.

Above all, BMW's success against tough international competition shows the future of BMW must remain based on a top quality product created by a accure workforce.

What is happening at Dunlop, Britain's ailing tyre giant which hates to be called an ailing tyre giant? The Office of Fair Trading has now rubber-stamped the purchase of 26 per cent of Dunlop shares by the well-connected. Malaysian well-connected company Pegi.

Two Pegi representatives were finally appointed to the Dunlop board a month ago and Dunlop is awaiting official Malaysian approval for a deal that will effectively sell half its Malaysian holdings to Pegi.

That settlement might appear to dampen short-term takeover speculation, if heightening long-er term uncertainty. But further spice is now being added by the relentless, and apparently specu-lative rush into Dunlop shares

by American investors.
On Monday, Morgan Gua-ranty, which makes a business of organizing American hold-ings in London companies, announced that transatlantic sources have bought up more than 17 per cent of Dunlop, using American Depositary Receipts through nominee companies. That is 5 per cent more than a month ago – and almost all acquired in the past three months.

If you add in the estimated 8 per cent of Dunlop flowing anonymously around the Far East in the form of bearer shares, more than half this pillar of British Industry is now held by overseas interests and a quarter by seemingly speculat-ive holders, who, the company admits, might be only too eager to accept a full takeover hid should someone, presumably Pegi, wish to make one.

At one time, American buying lifted Dunlop shares from 53p to 80p. They have since relapsed to around 62p, pricing the group at £89m where the shares yield an unimpressive 4.5 per cent. This rating is hardly justified on trading.

Pretax profits have declined every year since 1977

Since 1977, pretax profits have declined every year from £54m to a £7m loss in 1982, when the final dividend was passed. Heavy rationalization cost below the line, particularly in tyres, brought the total loss to £80m, leaving Dunlop's balance sheet uncomfortably highly

Dunlop has not had anything like such a bad time since the disastrous Pirelli union married 1971, effectively sepa-rated 1973, finally divorced

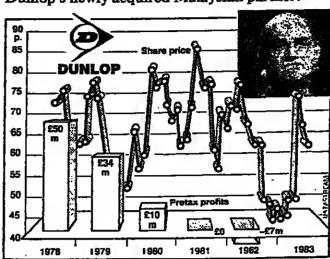

Nearly all the present trouble has been in the British and European - particularly French - tyre markets. Until the middle of 1982 it looked as though, at last, there was some recovery in these depressed markets, But the second half of last year proved with a vengeance that this was not the case. After a first-half profit of £4m, the group lost film in the second half - almost entirely due to and the loss of still more jobs. renewed depression in tyres.

Sandy McLachlan

Outsiders put more pressure on Dunlop

American speculators are rushing to buy the apparently unattractive shares of Dunlop, Britain's ailing tyre multinational. Will they aid a takeover, or have they misread the intentions of Dunlop's newly acquired Malaysian partner?

Sir Campbell Fraser: Malaysian alliance

Bridsh tyre division lost £13m and the French side a further £9m. It was left to Dunlop's other divisions, mainly indus-trial, consumer, and engineering, to make up some of the

The tyre market remains depressed despite the present boom in car sales. France is going through a particulary difficult time - Michelin made a loss of £354m in its latest financial year and it is unlikely, proportionately, Dunlop will have done much better.

In Britain, there has been some improvement in volume terms both in the original equipment market and the replacement market, but in each case price levels remain wor-

It is estimated that there is a 20 per cent worldwide overcapacity in the tyre market and much of the surplus is dumped in Europe, Indeed, compeccion within Europe is fierce: at times, currency movements have made it possible for Germanmade Dunlop tyres to undercut British-made Dunlops in Britain and the Germans have not been slow to take advantage.

Over the past few years Dunlop has cut its British tyre workforce by two-thirds to just under 4,000, hut the group has forecast still further "radical restructuring" in the British and European tyre divisions. Although it has not been spelt ont, this restructuring will include dropping some product lines

Moves are likely to be spring, partly to keep as low a profile as possible. Dunlop's chairman, CBI president Sir Campbell Fraser, has had enough of a high profile over his colors are profile over his colors. salary increase at Dunlop at a time when the group was registering record losses. In any case, the group's high gearing is not condusive to further hig write-offs — at least until Dunlop's has had the cash from its deal with Pegi. Once approved by the Malay-sian Foreign Investment Committee, this would put its 51 per cent shareholding in Dunlop Malaysian Industries Berhard (DMIB) into a new company which it will jointly own with Pegi.

The first step has already been taken in Ireland. The Cork-based operation has announced that there are serious donbts about its long-term viability unless it can bring in a partner and Ireland's Industrial Development Authority is try-ing to find a third party. Should it fail, speculation that the operation may fold may not be far off the mark, although Dunlop will not comment.

With tyres at least getting no worse, and better contributions from the rest of the group both by product and geographically - there is no doubt that Dunlop has done better in the first half of the present year than in the second half of last year, although it will not match first half of last year.

The figures, published next group back to a near break-even position, although some analysis are still not looking for much better than a 22m loss.

It is, therefore, American and Far Eastern promise that is sustaining the share price and, of the two, the former is the more mystifying. Dunlop has had no success in tracing the buyers through the nominees, but there are some indicators (not least from Morgan Guaranty) that point to widespread small buying rather than the purchase of a single stake.

For a start, any American much better than a £2m loss.

For a start, any American group wishing to buy a strategic stake would surely not be clumsy enough in execution to push the share price up by 50 per cent along the way. Second. the company has had numerous phone calls from apparently individual American shareholders wanting to know just what this company does be-cause they have bought shares

One theory about the attraction of the group in the United States is that it is a dollar stock (and Dunlop is valued at around $1 at present price and exchange rates) with a hightechnology stake in the next generation of Boeing aircraft through a contract to supply the

On the face of it. the situation in the Far East is clearer. Pegi's request for representation on the Dunlop board was reasonnble, given its stake in the company, and makes sense, given that the two companies are jointly to share control over DMIB.

Pegi has repeatedly assured Dunlop that it has no intention of hidding for the whole group and, indeed, the renegotiation of terms over DMIB (Pegi was originally going to buy the whole 51 per cent direct from Dunlop) was to prevent Pegi having to make an offer to outside shareholders in DMIB.

Malaysian blessing could make Dunlop more takeover prone

For Dunlop, the most pressing need now is to achieve that official approval. Not only will it receive £55m in cash denominated in nice comfortable Swiss francs, but it will realize a £24m surplus over book value which can be offset against rationalization costs (A fact which may cause unease among at least some of the 3,750 people who still work at Fort Dunlop in Birmingham).

When it comes, the Malaysian blessing will give some relief to the hard pressed balance sheet hut, on the other hand, it could make the company even more takeover-prone than it is.

With net assets per share of 265p a share and little chance of a Tilling-type profit forecast while the tyre market remains so depressed, Dunlop is likely to remain a takeover prospect. Indeed, the present weakness of the European tyre market, which any bidder would inherit. may be the group's strongest

As it is Gloucestershire deserve some fortune, not least because of the haphazard manner in which they went out of the Benson and Hedges Cup (did Graveney keep the coin which settled their fate?). Their opponents, who have yet to reach a Lord's final, may well have been the side they wanted to face at the time of the draw. Whether that will still be the case after their trials of the last three days is another matter. Hampshire, at the moment, look pretty formidable. Greenidge and Smith cannot stop scoring runs, and Marshall cannot stop scoring runs, and Marshall cannot stop wanting the ball. It is like a drug to him. Striking a blow in the wind

By John Wilcockson

When rain halted the qualifying round of the amateur 4,000 metres pursuit at the national track championships in Leicestershire yesterday the fastest time had been set by Malcolm Elliott, from Sheffield, the double Commonwealth Games road champion. His time of 4min 59.141sc made him the only one of the 95 starters uoder from him the only one of the 95 starters uoder from him the only one of the 95 starters uoder five minutes, and was excellent in the windy conditions.

Elliott returned to track racing only last weekend, and as a warm-up to the pursuit he started in the one kilometre time-trial on Monday night. His time of Imin I I sec placed him immediately behind three acknowledged experts at this specialist discipline. The winner, who gained his second national title of the championship week, was Shaun Wallace from Southampton, a student at Nottingham University. Wallace's relatively slow time of lmin 9.588sec emphasized the problems caused by unpleasant weather. It was just a fraction too fast for Mark Barry. The major surprise of Monday's rain-delayed session was the defeat of the world road race champion, Mandy Jones, in the women's 3,000 metres pursuit by a tecnager, Barbra Collins from Lincoln. But Miss Jones was unruffled by her defeat. The difference was that Barbra had prepared for it and I hadn't", she said. "If we had raced on Sunday, as was scheduled, perhaps I would have done better. But on Sunday night we got flooded out at the camp site, and before the final I had a little accident in the car park, and

Americans run adrift in murky water

With only one day and two half-course races remaining in the elimination series preliminary round to produce a challenger in the America's Cup at Newport, Rhode Island, that historic competition is living up to its reputation for controversy. The New York Yacht Club (NYYC), if they cannot find a rule to snooker the opposition, are prepared in invent one: and the Brits once agaio canoot seemingly make their minds who shall be chiefs and who Indians.

The former situation finds the British firmly aligned behind the Australians in calling the Americans cads while the latter has the more neutral and objective Americans wondering how we ever got ourselves organized enough to win the war (the one where they were on our side). In between the two controversies Peter de Savary's quiet smile of optimism remains as wide as Rhode Island Sound.

The carefully stage-managed yet none the less clumsy release of a private letter from the commodore of the New York YC attempting to discredit the legality of the design of Australia II, emphatic leader of the elimination series so far, if not actually tohave her disqualified because of her innovative keel, clearly demonstrates the they cause difficulty next? I finally surrender the trophy the regulations will be masts, which is worth many millions to US yachting in general and the folk of Newport in particu-

The fact that the six other boat Azzura are made by North, challenging syndicates have unanimously supported the legitimacy of Australia II, thereby putting the ball firmly back in the American court, back in the American court, and the support of the same three ball firmly back in the American court, and the support of the support o does not by any means indicate aller is one of the three that the affair is over. The candidates to skipper the letter's existence has been known for three weeks. Newport, Rhode Island (AFP) - The only race among the America's Cup challengers on Monday was the postponed ting between France 3 and the Australian yacht, Challenge XII, which finished with a 54 d advantage, but remains in fifth place.

CHALLENGERS' POSTTIONS (before yesterday's races): 1, Australia II 16.88; 2, Azzarra (h) 11.29; 3, Victory 73 (GB) 10.44; 4, Canada i S.72; 5, Challenge 12 (Aus) 9.60; 6, France 3 2.12; 7, Advance (Aust) 0.80.

among the challengers is which four will contest the semi-finals in which the boats start from scratch, "a whole new regatta" as de Savary put it yesterday. He claims that their new Proctor mast, specially lightened, will make "a significantl difference", giving Victory '83 a five or 10 per cent improvement. Meanwhile the controversy over the helming of the British boat continues. Yesterday Phil Crebbin was ck in the after-guard alongside Lawrie Smith for the first race of the critical final four against Challenge 12. This meant that Smith's partnership with Rodney Pattisson, successful against Canada two days ago after a disastrous start, has one again been discarded. It is becoming increasingly apparent, however, that the rest of the crew are split more or less evenly oo whether Pattisson or Crebbin should be sharing the helm with Smith. It is regarded as imperative by many of those with experience on the sidelines that de Savary must now make a decision oo his first choice for the semi-final round. As one of the squad said recently:

The difference on the boat is between the more extrover rebels, and those who really want to think about it. There are some people on the boat who regretiably have now contributed as much as they might have." Smith and Pattissoo have made no secret of their preference for each other, and it is also apparent to the careful observer that Crebbin, one of the best starting beimsmen in the competition with n highly intelligent approach to match racing, is hardly overwhelmed by his popularity among the

One of the squad said yesterday: "Up till now it has been possible to justify the interchanging of helmsmen but now it is necessary to make a decision, I think de Savary knows this too, but whether be's prepared to we shall have to wait and see."

Reaching for the

key to Florida By John Hennessy Golf Corresponden

Three young men reached out yesterday for the £1,000 prize that goes with the national assistants' championship, sponsored by Foot-Joy, at Coombe Hill They were Gary Coles, of St George's Hill, Bryan Lewis, of Panshanger, and Ian Grant, of Orsett, all with 71, one over par for the 6,256-yard Surrey course. Their horizons are wider, however, for the tournsment, resuscitated after a lapse of a couple of decades in a more authoritative form, carries also the entrée to the world assistants' championship in Florida in December.

Lewis, the first man to strike a ball yesterday, became the first man to set the standard. He comes from Nick Faldo country, Welwyn Garden City and would have occupied Faldo's usual position this year - in spendid isolation at the top - if it had not been for five at the

The main difficulty of the hole, only 390 yards, is that one plays from a valley on to an invisible green. Lewis, in his own words, "quit oo the shot" and dragged it into a bunker, whence be came out well short. Thus the delight be derived from a six-iron to 10ft for a two at the previous bole was short-lived. On reflection he no doubt has good cause to be satisfied with his final score.

Coles, soo of Neil. played well as befits n man who came to Coombe Hill hard on a victory in one of the Open champiooship qualifying tour-naments. However, he had little success on the greens, brought to superb condition by expert greenkeeping. Coles had one had bole, the fifth, where a snap hook off the tee planted him among the trees and destroyed

Graot modestly owes it all to his caddie, or so he says, since he could not otherwise have got away with 26 putts. Another distinguished offoring, Duncan Muscroft, had a disastrous round of 82.

Watson is born again and ready to join immortals

Los Angeles (Réuter) — A resurgent. Tom Watson will this wock attempt to become only the fifth player to win all four major titles when he tees off in the United States PGA Championship tomorrow. Victory would part Watson allangside his fellow-Americans, Jack Niekhaus, Ben Hogan and Genc Sarazen, and the South African, Gary Player, in a grothy who, in addition in the PGA title, have won the US Open, US Masters and the British Open.

After a lackfustre first half to this season Watson sprang to life in lume by finshing second in the US Open; he repeated the performance in the Western Open; and in his last nuting three weeks ago he continued his domination of the British Open with his fifth vicorty in the game's most hallowed event.

Watson was delighted that the PGA event was being played at Riviera, dubbed "Hogan's Alley" after the legendary golfer who won two Los Angeles Open bere in 18 months. "It's nue of the best-designed courses in the world," Watson said. "It makes you play every chi in the bag." Victory at Riviera, the country club of the Hollywood stars, would also give Watson his minth big title, putting him level with Hogan sind Player and leaving only Nicklans with his fifth vicorty in the game's most hallowed event.

Long bill of the Law

Five Football League clubs — Sheffield Wednesday, Sheffield United, Barnsley, Rotherham United and Doncaster Rovers — have been ordered to pay £250,000 for the policing of their grounds last season. They each asked for 10 months to settle the account, but the South Yorkshire Police Authority will take legal action unless the debt is paid within a week.

The Police Authority chairman,

George Moores, said paying by instalment was unacceptable. He They should have started paying ip in 1982 and they are eight to ten months behind. We've tried to be fair but it's a lot of money."

Relations between police and Relations between police and clubs have been strained for some time, because the clubs claim the charges made by the county's police are the highest in the country. DIRECTOR'S SECRETARY

International marketing involvement with a leading British Group

With a leading British Group

Here's an exciting role for a Secretary who wants to be where marketing strategies are developed for a leading engineering design and construction group.

As Secretary to the Marketing Director covering the Group's mining interests, you'll be involved in plans for business development on an international scale.

At our Headquarters in the West End you'll make a personal input into the market research projects on which important decisions are based, and run the office smoothly when this globe trotting Director is away.

The job is a new one providing scope for a contribution which will largely be determined by your own abilities and initiative. So if you're in your mid-o-late twenties with good typing (and probably shorthand) eldies and capabilities you've yet to use fully, now's the time to claim rewards which include an attractive salary, 5 weeks holiday and other important benefits.

Talk to Frome Manufitt on 01-536 3675 or send your c.v. to her at Metithew Hall PLC, 101-108 Tottenham Court Read, London W1A 18T.

Not all the properties are in the future of this excellect guide to ties appearing to the quarterly list are those which have failed to attract a buyer through the cormal commercial channels and are cormally of Grade 1 or Grade 2 buildings.

Covering as it does a wide to rooms the former police room whether local authority grants are commercial estate agency.

Doubts must now be raised over the future of this excellect guide to immediately habitable condition. Important historic buildings available for sale now that entries and description is an iodication of copies have to be paid for. Although whether the building is modernized the government department responsible for its publication regard it as tioo rooms the former police room whether local authority grants are on more than a back-up to the commercial estate agency. Covering as it does a wide too fooms the former police from whether local authority grants are collection of listed buildings you will and adjoining cell is still preserved available. Recent auction prices of more than a back-up to the collection of listed buildings you will and adjoining cell is still preserved available. Recent auction prices of cornal commercial estate ageocy would suggest there is great demand practice there are few other sources for tumbledown cottages or former of listed property on the market farm buildings requiring total available to the public. Murray plea on FT strike today

By Barrie Clement Labour Reporter

Mr Leo Murray, general secretary of the TUC, will today make a personal plea to the leaders of the National Graphical Association for a return to work at the strike-bound Finan-

Mr Murray is due to go to Bedford to confront the execu-tive of the NGA, the union at the centre of the nine-week stoppage, which is threatened with expulsion from the TUC.

He will tell them that not only is his personal reputation at stake, but also the image of the labour movement.

Mr Murray underwrote an iodependent mediator's report which the union said that it would "respect". But the docu-nient endorsed the management's offer of £304-a-week for the 24 machine minders at the centre of the dispute, and the union refused to accept it.

Th TUC general council last week formally advised the NGA to resume work and the union's national council is today discussing its response.

Mr Murray will tell the priot union leaders that, if they do not accept the peace formula, they will probably be expelled from the movement tomorrow by the general council of the

NGA sources were yesterday predicting that Mr Murray's personal plea will be of no avail and that the union is already looking to the full TUC Congress next month to reverse any general council decision to expel it. Meanwhile, the company's plans to produce the normal Furopean edition of the paper in Frankfurt without the NGA have gained little support.

Mr William Keys, general secretary of Sogat '82, a rival print union, says the TUC would bave to add to its expulsion order a recommendation that the other unions cooperate with the management's plans.

Even then the idea would have to be considered in the light of the NGA's threat that it would "close Fleet Street" if other workers broke the strike. Mr Alan Hare, FT chairman and chief executive, said that if there was no agreement to produce a non-NGA paper by the end of this week, there would be lay-offs.

Steadying management's hand,

It was manned by Herr Gunter Meisef of Freiburg, who told a concerned Royal Navy boarding party that he was fit and needed only cigarettes.

many thousands of pounds."

He bad told Mr Chase that the Oxford museum would buy the Iguanodon and display it. We can only offer him £900 by comparison to the big guns of Stuttgart.

"It is so important that we would put it on display here. If il went to Stuttgart it would just be stuck to a drawer and conserved to be available for research. We are hoping to persuade Nick that to bave £900 and have it displayed is worth more than having it disappear to Stuttgart."
Some British fossil collectors were already said to have sold parts of collections to the West page 2 Germans, he said.

have been in an earlier age.

He opted for that particular branch of palaeontology two years ago. Before that, his hobby experiments had taken him to astronomy.

University two years ago with ootbiog to look forward to but his find and the possibility that he may soon bave a job. But there are still two problems confrooting him. The first is that the skeletoo of the dinosaur is not complete, the remaining bones could be lying on the beach at the whim unemployment. Today life is different with the knowledge of

of the tide or the attention of amateur palaeontologists. He says that he has not been able to carry oo his work this summer because of the number of tourists, and fears that if the site is publicized the collection will be put at risk.

The second problem is what to do with his fied and whether to accept any money for it.

Dr William Ball, Keeper of Palacootology at the Natural History Museum, said last night that if the dinosaur had been found oo the beach he would consider the fieder to be the feeling so tired that he can hardly climb the stairs, that it is difficult for him to know whether he is feeling "sermal" or actually unwell.

Coe says illness may end his career

But when on Sunday be ran the perfectly judged 800 and made his familiar attack on the final bend, only to finish fourth and looking as if he were running in soft sand, then the full force of his private nightmare could no longer be ignored. The truth was, as in the European championships in Athens last year, that his body had lost the ability to reproduce past extravagances, and had no hope of recovering in time for Helsinki.

"Of course it hurts when younger runners like Elliott are suddenly going past you, and on Sunday I knew that all arguments about tactics were now empty."

When, two weeks ago, he withdrew from the Helsinki 1,500 metres race, he still considered that he would be in sufficient form to justify himself over 800 metres in Finland. After all, he had run the world's fastest time of the year, 1:43.80, in Oslo only 2 few weeks ago, and even at less than his best had still surely to be the favourite. Had he not been cleared hy the hospital on his last blood checkup last April, had he not had fortnightly tests for several months after glandular fever was diagnosed after his defeat in Athens last August? He said yesterday: "Two weeks ago I began to wonder about my condition. My preparatioo had not been all it should have been because of a stomach strain, and I decided with Peter to cut right back oo training, just to keep sharp and fast, because even in comparison with past experience I was feeling more tired than I should bavecen.

"I speot several days feeling reasonable, and then had a spell feeling rough. I suppose you do not want to admit these things until you actually come to a grinding halt, yet com-pared with the seasons of 1980-pared with the seasons of 1980-81, you could say I have not felt totally well since July 1982." The hurt of the past two days lies not only in the end of the ambition to win the major 800 metres race which had eluded him in Prague, Moscow and then Athens. It is, without doubt, the end of the love affair with his favourite event, the onhe regards as the perfect combination of sprinting ability and stamina. and stamina.

"I feel very upset", he said.

"As far as the 800 metres goes, the game is np. Helsinki would have been my swansong.

"I have been obliged to walk away from an event which I did not believe I had yet fully explored, and I believe that when fit I have still reached nowhere oear my potential over 1,500 metres."

The other hurt bas been the behaviour of some of those once regarded as friends, who, hours before the announcements of his iliness became public, were denigrating him as a has-been.

Looking forward to the Olympic Games in Los Angeles, Coe said: "Whether I would run the 1,500 or the 5,000 metres would all depend on what the specialists have to say, what they consider might be the body's reaction to moving up to the endurance demands of the longer race. We will just have to wait and see.

"For the moment, all they will say is that when I come out at the end of this week I must cut back on the tennis!"

It will be a tragedy if we have seen the best of Sebastian Coc already, for be is only 26 and should be in his prime, as Peter Snell was when he did the Olympic double in 1964. But Coe has been running a cricket pitch length faster than Snell and there is no knowing what that effort has done to so frail a frame. Those who bave been thrilled by all that has gooe before must now wish him well.
